

Our food supply is worth protecting

Ready today, resilient tomorrow.

bioweek.org.au

Biosecurity starts with you

From the food on your plate to the places you love, biosecurity protects everyday life in Australia.

National Biosecurity Week serves an important reminder that biosecurity equals food security, and underpins agricultural trade and market access.

This annual event highlights the collaborative efforts of government, industry peak bodies and the community in safeguarding Australia from exotic marine pests and diseases.

By raising awareness and encouraging the adoption of good biosecurity practices, National Biosecurity Week strives to protect our oceans and fisheries and supports a resilient food supply.

Simple actions make a difference.
Start at bioweek.org.au

